

MORNING BRIEFING — SATURDAY 12 SEPTEMBER 2026

Generated 12 September 2026 • 07:45 BST (London) • Data collected between 06:30 and 07:40 BST via open web sources • Reference timezone: Europe/London (BST = UTC+1)

Weekend edition. European, US and Asian markets are all closed Saturday. Next trading day: Monday 14 September 2026. All closing levels below are Friday 11 September 2026 unless stated otherwise. Genuine Monday pre-open futures levels were not available via open sources at this Saturday collection time (US e-minis reopen 18:00 ET / 23:00 BST Sunday; European futures resume ahead of Monday's cash open).

2. IMPORTANT NEWS

Iran-US Strait of Hormuz war hits its largest wave of shipping attacks yet

GlobalSecurity.org / Reuters via Al Jazeera • Thu 10 Sep \(Day 195\)

Iran struck 10 vessels near the Strait of Hormuz on 10 September, described by Reuters as the largest declared wave of shipping attacks by either side since the war began on 28 February 2026. The US targeted three Iranian oil tankers and Iran fired a ballistic missile toward US warships in the Gulf in the same tit-for-tat exchange. This is the direct driver behind the week's oil spike and remains the dominant swing factor into Monday's open.

Brent hits $108, highest since 19 May, before easing into Friday's close

CNBC / CNN Business / NBC News • Thu 10 Sep spike, eased Fri 11 Sep

Brent rose as much as 7.1% intraday Thursday to touch $108/bbl, its highest level since 19 May, before settling near $107.63. It eased to $106.11 (−1.41% d/d) on Friday as US equities and yields paused their surge. Goldman Sachs said intensifying shipping attacks raise the probability of Brent exceeding $120/bbl if the conflict widens further. Saudi crude output reportedly fell ~1.9m b/d in August. This is the single biggest input into Monday's inflation, freight and equity-risk picture.

ECB hikes to 2.50%, second 2026 increase, cites Middle East-driven energy inflation

ECB press conference / Securities.io / CNBC • Wed 10 Sep \(rate change effective 16 Sep\)

The ECB Governing Council raised its three key rates by 25bp, taking the deposit facility rate to 2.50%, the refi rate to 2.65% and the marginal lending rate to 2.90%, effective 16 September. The Bank said the Middle East conflict continues to generate inflation pressure, with euro-area headline HICP at an estimated 3.3% in August (energy +14.3% y/y; ex-energy 2.2%). It gave no commitment to further hikes, calling future moves data-dependent. Sets up a genuinely hawkish handoff to next week's Fed and BoE decisions.

US August CPI and PPI both run hot; Fed hike odds for 16 Sept FOMC surge to ~80-90%

Yahoo Finance / CBS News / DeFi Rate • Thu-Fri 10-11 Sep

August core CPI rose 0.3% m/m, above the 0.2% consensus; PPI's annual rate accelerated to 5.4%. CME FedWatch-tracked odds of a 25bp hike at the 16 September FOMC jumped to roughly 80-90%, up from about 70% on Thursday. A hike would be a marked regime shift after years of cuts and holds, arriving in the same week the ECB has already tightened and the BoE decides on 17 September.

Wall Street snaps four-day losing streak as oil and yields pause

TheStreet / Washington Post / CNBC • Fri 11 Sep

The Dow rose 509 points (+0.98%) to 52,573, the S&P 500 gained 0.86% to 7,656 and the Nasdaq added 0.96% to 26,333, snapping four straight losing sessions as crude and Treasury yields stopped climbing. Cisco Systems (+4.38%), IBM (+3.89%) and Boeing (+2.77%) led gainers. A firmer, if fragile, handoff into the weekend despite the wartime and rate-hike backdrop.

3. EUROPEAN FUTURES (PRE-OPEN)

CONTRACT	LEVEL	IMPLIED MOVE	COLLECTION TIME
Euro Stoxx 50 futures	n/a — no weekend reopen data available	Index futures do not trade Saturday/Sunday; last reference is Friday cash close (Section 4)	06:30-07:40 BST
DAX futures	n/a — no weekend reopen data available	See Friday DAX cash close, Section 4	06:30-07:40 BST
CAC 40 futures	n/a — no weekend reopen data available	See Friday CAC 40 cash close, Section 4	06:30-07:40 BST
FTSE 100 futures	n/a — no weekend reopen data available	See Friday FTSE cash close, Section 4	06:30-07:40 BST
US context — futures reopen Sunday ~23:00 BST (18:00 ET)
S&P 500 e-mini	n/a — had not yet reopened at data-collection time	Reopens Sunday 18:00 ET / 23:00 BST	06:30-07:40 BST
Nasdaq 100 e-mini	n/a — had not yet reopened at data-collection time	Same as above	06:30-07:40 BST

This edition was collected Saturday morning BST, well before both the Sunday evening US e-mini reopen and Monday's European pre-open, so no genuine futures levels exist yet. Directionally, Friday's session leaves a cautiously firmer handoff: Wall Street snapped a four-day losing streak as oil eased off Thursday's $108 spike, but the ECB has already hiked to 2.50%, the Fed is priced at ~80-90% odds of hiking Wednesday, and the Strait of Hormuz war remains live and escalating. Recommend checking a live terminal or CME/Investing.com futures pages directly after the Sunday evening US reopen, and again at the European pre-open.

4. YESTERDAY'S CLOSES — EUROPEAN INDICES (FRIDAY 11 SEPTEMBER 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE
Euro Stoxx 50	6,327	+0.91%
DAX 40	~25,560 (derived: Thu 10 Sep confirmed close 25,361 × confirmed +0.79% Fri move; exact Friday print not directly sourced)	+0.79%
CAC 40	n/a — exact closing level not confirmed via open sources	+0.79%
FTSE 100	14,404	+~0.5-0.6%

European equities rose across the board Friday, tracking Wall Street's recovery as oil eased back from Thursday's $108 spike. The ECB's Wednesday hike to 2.50% is now the more important near-term European driver, with the Bank of England's own decision due Thursday 17 September. Treat all four levels as the base case for Monday's open pending confirmed futures.

5. US MARKETS — YESTERDAY'S SESSION (FRIDAY 11 SEPTEMBER 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE	NOTE
S&P 500	7,656	+0.86% (+65.15 pts)	Snapped a 4-session losing streak
Dow Jones Industrial Average	52,573	+0.98% (+509 pts)	Snapped a 4-session losing streak
Nasdaq Composite	26,333	+0.96% (+251.31 pts)	Snapped a 4-session losing streak

US stocks opened higher and stayed there through the session as oil and Treasury yields paused their multi-day surge and the August CPI report came in largely as expected, even as core CPI's 0.3% m/m reading kept the Fed's 16 September decision genuinely live. Leading sectors: nine of eleven S&P sectors finished higher, led by Technology, Industrials and Communications, all up over 1%. Lagging sectors: Healthcare and Utilities. Cisco Systems (+4.38%), IBM (+3.89%) and Boeing (+2.77%) were the session's standout large-cap gainers.

Key takeaway: a rare pause in the oil-and-yields shock that has dominated early September let equities bounce, but the underlying drivers — the Iran war, a hawkish ECB, and now near-90% odds of a Fed hike — are all still live heading into next week.

6. ASIAN MARKETS — LAST SESSION (FRIDAY 11 SEPTEMBER 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE
Nikkei 225	64,011.34	−1.93%
Hang Seng	24,805.63	−0.60%
Shanghai Composite	3,888.11	−1.18%
Kospi (South Korea)	6,909.91	−1.76% (−124.01 pts)

Asia is closed Saturday; Friday remains the region's last completed session, with Monday's Asian open (Sunday night/Monday morning UK time) the next available read ahead of the European open. Friday was broadly weak: rising oil prices and higher US Treasury yields weighed on risk appetite across the board, and comments from President Trump that he does not expect the Iran war to end before the November midterms, with oil unlikely to fall until then, kept the risk premium elevated. Shanghai's losses were led by Hengli Petrochemical (−6.30%), Yonghui Superstore (−5.56%) and Zijin Mining (−5.42%). Kospi shipbuilders bucked the broader decline on the same tanker/freight-rate story that has lifted global shipping names. Watch Monday's Asian open closely for whether the Hormuz-driven risk-off tone extends or fades.

7. COMMODITIES

COMMODITY	LEVEL	CHANGE	TIME
Brent (ICE, USD/bbl)	$106.11	−1.41% d/d; down from Thursday's $108 spike (highest since 19 May)	Fri 11 Sep
WTI (NYMEX, USD/bbl)	$102.59	+0.11% d/d	Fri 11 Sep
Gold (XAU/USD, USD/oz)	$4,347.78	+0.71% d/d	Fri 11 Sep
Natural gas (Henry Hub, USD/MMBtu)	$2.83	−0.12% d/d	Fri 11 Sep
Copper (COMEX, USD/lb)	$6.46	−0.07% d/d	Fri 11 Sep

Oil remains the dominant commodity story: Brent's pullback to $106.11 from Thursday's $108 spike (highest since 19 May) reflects a pause, not a reversal, in the Hormuz-driven risk premium — Goldman Sachs flagged $120+ as a live risk if shipping attacks intensify further. Natural gas eased slightly on a larger-than-expected US storage build (+40 bcf vs +31 bcf expected), partly offset by above-average cooling demand and rising LNG exports as European and Asian buyers seek alternatives to disrupted Middle East supply. Gold's modest gain is consistent with safe-haven demand persisting alongside the war and rate-hike backdrop; copper eased marginally on the same risk-off tone that hit Asian equities.

8. RATES & FX

INSTRUMENT	LEVEL	CHANGE	TIME
US Treasury 10-year	4.96%	Near the year's highs amid hot CPI/PPI and Fed hike repricing	Fri 11 Sep
German Bund 10-year	3.51%	+~2bp d/d	Fri 11 Sep
EUR/USD	Below 1.1612 (bounced from ~1.1580 support)	Slipped on the ECB hike, then stabilised	Fri 11 Sep
GBP/USD	1.351	Softened	Fri 11 Sep
DXY (Dollar Index)	~98.97-99.06	Recovered on hot PPI, then gave back gains post-CPI; sources show intraday range	Fri 11 Sep

Rates markets are now pricing a rare hawkish trifecta: the ECB has already hiked to 2.50% (effective 16 Sep), the Fed is priced at roughly 80-90% odds of a 25bp hike at its own 16 September meeting, and the Bank of England decides on 17 September. The US 10-year near 4.96% and the German Bund at 3.51% mark a genuine regime shift from the rate-cut narrative of prior years, driven in large part by the Iran war's energy-inflation shock. EUR/USD and GBP/USD both softened on the week despite the ECB hike, consistent with a broad dollar bid tied to US rate-hike repricing. Re-verify all figures against a live terminal before Monday's 08:00 BST cash open.

9. DCM — PRIMARY BOND MARKET

YESTERDAY'S ISSUANCES

ISSUER	SIZE	MATURITY	COUPON/SPREAD	IPT-TO-PRICING
--------	------	----------	---------------	----------------

No EUR-denominated corporate IG, HY, SSA or financials deal could be confirmed as pricing on Friday 11 September via open sources. GlobalCapital coverage describes the euro corporate bond market "readying for issuance burst," with issuers said to be weighing pulling deals forward ahead of autumn volatility, but no Friday-specific deal terms were accessible beyond headline-level content.

PIPELINE / EXPECTED THIS WEEK (WEEK OF 14 SEPTEMBER)

No specific mandated or roadshowing deal could be confirmed for the week of 14 September via open search. Tata Motors' 7 September agreement to acquire IVECO Group is a plausible source of acquisition-financing supply in the coming weeks, consistent with 2026's pattern of M&A-driven euro issuance (L'Oreal, Alphabet cited as recent precedents). GlobalCapital frames 2026 as at least as busy as 2025 for net corporate issuance, with capex-driven AI/data-centre financing a structural demand driver alongside M&A.

KEY SPREADS

INDEX	LEVEL	MOVE / DIRECTION	AS OF
iTraxx Europe Main 5yr	n/a — current level not found via open sources	Positioning data shows investors cut net long exposure by $3.8bn in the week to 28 Aug	Week of 28 Aug (positioning only)
iTraxx Europe Crossover 5yr	~318bp (STALE — mid-May reference, Series 45)	No September-dated level found via open sources	Mid-May 2026
CDX IG 5yr (USD)	n/a — current level not found via open sources	Positioning data shows investors added $6.8bn in net longs in the week to 28 Aug, a capital shift toward US credit	Week of 28 Aug (positioning only)
Avg euro corporate IG spread (OAS proxy)	n/a — not found via open sources this session	—	—

No current-week iTraxx Main, Crossover or CDX IG level could be sourced via open web access this session. Bloomberg, GlobalCapital, IFR and cbonds pages remained paywalled or returned only headline-level content. A live terminal is required for same-day confirmation before Monday's open.

COMMENTARY

Primary market conditions are genuinely two-sided into next week. GlobalCapital's "issuance burst" framing suggests issuers want to get ahead of further volatility, but that volatility is coming from three simultaneous central-bank moves (ECB hiked, Fed and BoE decisions due 16-17 Sept) layered on top of a live shooting war driving energy inflation. The late-August capital shift out of iTraxx Main longs and into CDX IG longs points to investors favouring US over European credit risk for now. Recommend a live IFR/GlobalCapital and Bloomberg spread check before Monday's window opens.

10. ECONOMIC CALENDAR (MONDAY 14 SEPTEMBER 2026 AND WEEK AHEAD)

DATE	REGION	INDICATOR	CONSENSUS	IMPORTANCE
Mon 14 Sep	Canada	CPI	n/a	MEDIUM
Mon 14 Sep	Eurozone / UK / US	No high-importance release specifically confirmed for Monday via open sources	n/a	LOW
Tue 15 Sep	China	Key macro data (industrial production, retail sales)	n/a	MEDIUM
Tue 15 Sep	UK	Labour market figures (unemployment, wages)	n/a	MEDIUM
Wed 16 Sep	UK	CPI	n/a	HIGH
Wed 16 Sep	US	Retail Sales	n/a	MEDIUM
Wed 16 Sep	US	FOMC rate decision	~80-90% odds of a 25bp hike per CME FedWatch	HIGH
Thu 17 Sep	UK	Bank of England rate decision, 12:00 London	n/a	HIGH
This week	Japan	Bank of Japan meeting (exact day not confirmed via open sources)	n/a	MEDIUM

Monday itself is thin by comparison to the rest of the week, which is dominated by three central-bank decisions: the Fed (Wednesday, ~80-90% priced odds of a hike), the Bank of England (Thursday) and the Bank of Japan (date within the week not confirmed via open sources). UK CPI (Wednesday) lands directly ahead of both the Fed and BoE decisions and will shape rate-path expectations on both sides of the Atlantic. Treat exact weekday alignment as indicative and re-confirm against a live economic calendar before trading around any single release.

11. CORPORATE EVENTS & EARNINGS (MONDAY 14 SEPTEMBER 2026)

COMPANY	MARKET	EVENT	TIME
Trip.com Group (NASDAQ: TCOM)	US-listed / China	Earnings report	n/a
Lennar (NYSE: LEN)	US	Earnings report	n/a
Hain Celestial (NASDAQ: HAIN)	US	Earnings report	n/a

Earnings Whispers lists roughly sixty companies reporting during the week of 14 September, predominantly US-listed and mid-cap. No confirmed European large-cap earnings or AGM could be sourced for Monday 14 September via open search; expect a light Monday slate for Europe with the fuller post-summer reporting season concentrated later in the month.

Monday's confirmed slate is thin and US-led, headlined by Trip.com's results. The bulk of the week's corporate news flow is more likely to come from central-bank reaction (Fed Wednesday, BoE Thursday) and any further developments in the Strait of Hormuz conflict than from scheduled earnings. Recommend a live earnings-calendar check (Earnings Whispers, TradingView) for any Monday-specific European names not captured via open search.

12. STOCKS TO WATCH — MONDAY 14 SEPTEMBER

Frontline / Scorpio Tankers (NYSE) — Shipping	A basket of 35 US- and European-listed shipping stocks has climbed roughly 68% year-to-date on Hormuz-driven disruption; Scorpio Tankers is up 64.86% YTD through 4 September and posted Q2 revenue up 77.5% y/y on forced rerouting. Q3 LR2 spot rates are booking at $65,000/day. Frontline posted its best-ever $659m quarter and a record $2.61 dividend.	Bullish momentum, headline-sensitive
American Airlines / United Airlines (NASDAQ/NYSE) — Aviation	American Airlines cut its 2026 profit outlook, citing over $4bn in extra fuel costs if current pricing holds; shares have fallen as much as 6-7% on the oil spike. Industry-wide 2026 profit is now projected at $23bn, down from $45bn in 2025. Jet fuel costs are up $1.81/gallon year-on-year.	Bearish overhang
Lockheed Martin / RTX / BAE Systems / Hensoldt — Aerospace & Defense	Lockheed signed a DoD framework to quadruple Precision Strike Missile production capacity in response to the ongoing conflict, taking its backlog to a record $194bn (2.5x annual sales). Hensoldt and BAE Systems were among the top Stoxx 600 performers on escalation days, up close to 5% and around 6% respectively.	Bullish, conflict-driven demand
Zijin Mining (HKEX/SSE) / gold miners — Metals & Mining	Zijin Mining fell 5.42% Friday in the broader China selloff even as gold miners globally are showing short-term bullish momentum on safe-haven gold demand tied to the war and rate-hike backdrop — a genuine divergence between China-specific risk-off flows and the metal's own safe-haven bid.	Two-sided
Chevron / ExxonMobil / Shell / BP — Energy	Energy majors are trading near highs on the Hormuz-driven supply premium. Friday's pullback in Brent from $108 to $106.11 is a near-term test of whether that premium holds into Monday; Goldman Sachs sees $120+ as a live risk if attacks intensify further.	Two-sided, event-risk
HSBC / Barclays / Deutsche Bank — Banks	The ECB's hike to 2.50% is a direct tailwind for European bank net interest income; Barclays estimates a 50bp rate rise lifts median European lender NII by ~2% and pre-tax profit by ~3%. Deutsche Bank already posted a record €1.9bn Q2 post-tax profit (revenue +9% y/y, 11.9% ROTE); HSBC and NatWest are expected to raise profitability guidance in upcoming results.	Bullish, rate-hike tailwind
IVECO Group / Tata Motors — Industrials, M&A	Tata Motors' 7 September agreement to acquire IVECO Group creates a global commercial-vehicle player. Watch for confirmation of acquisition-financing details and any resulting euro bond supply.	M&A follow-through
Trip.com Group (NASDAQ:TCOM) — Corporate event	Reports earnings Monday 14 September as the week's opening name in a roughly sixty-company US reporting week; no confirmed consensus figures found via open sources, so genuine event-risk into the print.	Event-risk

13. MACRO / CORPORATE / POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

MACRO

ECB hikes to 2.50%: the second 2026 increase, taking the deposit rate to 2.50%, refi to 2.65% and marginal lending to 2.90% effective 16 September. The Bank cited Middle East-driven energy inflation (August HICP 3.3%, energy +14.3% y/y) and declined to commit to further tightening, calling future decisions data-dependent.

US CPI/PPI both hot: August core CPI rose 0.3% m/m versus a 0.2% consensus; PPI's annual rate accelerated to 5.4%. Fed hike odds for the 16 September FOMC surged to roughly 80-90% from about 70% on Thursday.

Central-bank cluster: the Fed (16 Sep), Bank of England (17 Sep, 12:00 London) and Bank of Japan (date within the week not confirmed) all decide within days of the ECB's move, an unusually synchronised global tightening episode driven substantially by the Iran war's energy shock.

US Treasury buyback demand soft: the Treasury's first expanded buyback operation attracted weaker-than-expected demand Friday, adding to upward pressure on yields.

CORPORATE

Lockheed Martin signed a framework agreement with the US Department of Defense to quadruple Precision Strike Missile production capacity, taking its backlog to a record $194bn, 2.5x annual sales.

Deutsche Bank posted a record €1.9bn Q2 post-tax profit, with net revenues up 9% y/y to €8.5bn, a 60.9% cost-income ratio and 11.9% ROTE for H1 2026.

Tata Motors agreed on 7 September to acquire IVECO Group, creating a global commercial-vehicle player, part of a broader wave of EMEA M&A that reached $676bn in H1 2026, more than double the year-earlier level and the strongest H1 in 19 years.

Frontline posted its best-ever quarter ($659m) and a record $2.61 dividend; Scorpio Tankers posted Q2 revenue up 77.5% y/y on Hormuz-driven rerouting.

American Airlines cut its 2026 profit outlook on more than $4bn in additional fuel costs; industry-wide profit is now projected at $23bn versus an earlier $41bn forecast.

POLITICAL / GEOPOLITICAL

Strait of Hormuz war escalates further: Iran struck 10 vessels near the strait on 10 September, the largest declared wave of shipping attacks since the war began on 28 February 2026. The US targeted three Iranian oil tankers and Iran fired a ballistic missile at US warships in the same exchange. The US naval blockade of Iranian ports continues; roughly 25% of the world's seaborne oil trade and 20% of LNG trade normally passes through the strait.

Trump on war timeline: President Trump said he does not expect the Iran war to end before the November US midterm elections, and does not expect oil prices to decline until then — a direct market signal that the current risk premium should be treated as a multi-month, not multi-week, feature.

Synchronised central-bank tightening: the ECB's hike, the Fed's high-odds hike and the BoE's decision all landing within a week is itself a geopolitically-driven event, with the Iran war's energy-inflation shock the common thread across all three.

14. KEY THEMES — TOP 5 BY HORIZON

TODAY'S TOP 5 (MONDAY 14 SEPTEMBER)

1. Whether the Hormuz risk premium holds after Friday's pullback

Brent eased from Thursday's $108 spike to $106.11; any fresh attack over the weekend reprices oil sharply higher into Monday's open.

2. Fed hike odds re-test into the 16 September FOMC

Odds sit at roughly 80-90% after hot CPI/PPI; Monday's session is the first genuine market re-test of that pricing.

3. European bank read-through from the ECB's 2.50% hike

HSBC, Barclays and Deutsche Bank all stand to see NII upgrades; watch for analyst commentary confirming the scale.

4. Asia-to-Europe risk-off carryover

Friday's broad Asian weakness on oil and yields, plus the Kospi shipbuilder divergence, is the key overnight read into the European open.

5. Trip.com Q2 earnings

The week's opening print in a roughly sixty-company US reporting week.

THIS WEEK'S TOP 5

1. FOMC decision, Wednesday 16 September

The week's highest-stakes event given ~80-90% priced odds of a hike that would mark a genuine turn in the Fed's cycle.

2. Bank of England decision, Thursday 17 September, 12:00 London

Third central-bank move of the week after the ECB and Fed, completing a synchronised tightening cluster.

3. UK CPI and US Retail Sales, Wednesday 16 September

Land directly ahead of the Fed and BoE decisions on the same day, shaping both central banks' immediate rate-path signalling.

4. Strait of Hormuz conflict trajectory

Any escalation or de-escalation from Thursday's largest-yet wave of attacks is the single biggest swing factor for oil, freight and inflation expectations this week.

5. Bank of Japan meeting

Adds a fourth major central bank to the week's cluster; exact meeting day not confirmed via open sources.

THIS MONTH'S TOP 5

1. FOMC decision, 16 September, and a possible start to a Fed hiking cycle

Priced at ~80-90% odds; would be the first hike after years of a cutting/holding bias.

2. Strait of Hormuz war passes 200 days

Trump's comment that the war is unlikely to end before the November midterms sets the timeline for the month's dominant tail risk.

3. Bank of England and Bank of Japan decisions

Complete the month's central-bank cluster alongside the Fed and the already-hiked ECB.

4. US November midterm election positioning

Increasingly intertwined with the war and energy-policy narrative per Trump's own framing.

5. Euro DCM reopening pace and M&A-driven supply

GlobalCapital's "issuance burst" framing, plus potential Tata-IVECO acquisition financing, to watch through September.

15. KEY TRENDS TO WATCH

1 DAY

Confirmation of Monday's futures: no genuine pre-open levels exist yet at this Saturday writing time — check live futures shortly after the Sunday 18:00 ET US reopen and again at the European pre-open.

Any weekend Hormuz headline is the single biggest swing risk after Thursday's largest-yet wave of shipping attacks.

Trip.com earnings as the week's opening print.

1 WEEK

Wednesday 16 Sep: UK CPI, US Retail Sales, and the FOMC rate decision.

Thursday 17 Sep: Bank of England rate decision, 12:00 London.

This week: Bank of Japan meeting, China macro data (Tue), UK labour market data (Tue), and a roughly sixty-name US earnings week.

Ongoing: Strait of Hormuz conflict trajectory following Thursday's largest wave of attacks.

1 MONTH

16-17 September: Fed and BoE decisions, the month's dominant policy events given the current hike pricing.

Ongoing: Strait of Hormuz war, now past 195 days, with Trump signalling it likely runs past the November midterms.

November midterms: increasingly tied to the war's trajectory and energy-price policy.

Euro DCM: issuance pace and M&A-driven supply (Tata-IVECO and similar) through the rest of September.
