

Morning Briefing, 2026-10-05

1. HEADER

Monday 5 October 2026. Generated 06:15 London (BST). Asian session still open at collection time, so Asian figures are intraday or last available.

Data collection time: all blocks collected approx 06:00 to 06:30 London via web search. Many sources were single-source; flagged where relevant.

2. IMPORTANT NEWS

US payrolls rose just 29,000 in September vs about 84,000 forecast. Unemployment 4.2%. July and August revised down 60,000. Source: CNBC, BLS. Why it matters: cements a Fed hold, traders see 84% odds of no change in October (CME FedWatch).

US 10Y yield fell about 6bp to 5.18% on Friday after touching the highest level since 2002 earlier in the week. 2Y fell 6bp to 4.73%. Source: CNBC. Why it matters: yields remain the main driver of equity risk appetite.

Crude near $100 a barrel on the ongoing Iran conflict. Source: CNBC weekly outlook. Why it matters: higher oil and higher yields are the two forces holding back rate-sensitive sectors.

Wall Street rallied Friday, Nasdaq +1.19%, Nvidia led the Nasdaq to an intraday record. Source: CNBC, Yahoo Finance. Why it matters: tech leadership returns as rate-hike fears fade.

Hang Seng fell 0.3% to about 23,908 on Monday after a 2.6% drop in the previous session. Source: Trading Economics. Why it matters: Asia remains weighed by high US yields and oil.
