2. IMPORTANT NEWS

Oil jumps as Strait of Hormuz reopening talks stall

CNBC, Al Jazeera — 10 Aug 2026

Brent settled near $87-88/bbl Monday after Iran's Foreign Ministry said the US must lift its naval blockade before the strait can reopen; commercial shipping through Hormuz has now been effectively disrupted for 163 days. Matters because sustained energy-cost inflation complicates the Fed/ECB/BoE rate path and pressures airlines, shippers and chemicals names into the European open.

Intel launches $15bn share sale, its first since its 1971 listing

Bloomberg, CNBC — 10 Aug 2026

Stock fell ~4% Monday on dilution fears even as Intel cited surging AI-chip demand and raised capex guidance to $20bn. Read-through for the semiconductor capex cycle and AI-infrastructure financing appetite across European chip-supply-chain names today.

Wall Street pauses after its best week since April

Washington Post, CNBC — 10 Aug 2026

S&P 500 -0.1%, Nasdaq -0.3%, Dow -0.1%; Nvidia -2.9%, Apple -1.5% dragged tech after an FT report Nvidia is working with Apollo Global and Blackstone on a ~$500bn AI-infrastructure funding package. Sets a slightly cautious tone into Europe's open after last week's rate-cut-hope rally.

US Senate passes Graham Russia/Iran sanctions bill, 86-11

CBS, Al Jazeera, CNBC — 8 Aug 2026

Authorises tariffs up to 100% on top buyers of Russian oil and gas, chiefly China and India. Bill now heads to a House in recess until September — a latent tariff and geopolitical risk overhang for H2 that markets are only beginning to price.

China July exports +23.9% y/y on AI/semiconductor shipments

CNBC — 7 Aug 2026

Trade surplus $112.5bn; chip exports +122% y/y. Underlying strength in the Asia tech-export chain, feeding into overnight Asian tech sentiment ahead of the European open.

3. EUROPEAN FUTURES (PRE-OPEN)

DAX futures	n/a	No reliably dated figure found
CAC 40 futures	n/a	No reliably dated figure found
FTSE 100 futures	n/a	No reliably dated figure found
S&P 500 futures (context)	n/a	Indicative +0.6%, low confidence — softer jobs data, falling yields cited
Nasdaq futures (context)	n/a	Indicative ~29,760–29,880, low confidence

Egress to Eurex/CME data providers blocked this morning. Confirm all pre-open levels on a live terminal before use — do not trade on the above.

4. YESTERDAY'S CLOSES — EUROPEAN INDICES (MONDAY, 10 AUGUST 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE
Euro Stoxx 50	~6,543	+0.2% to +0.3% (fresh record close)
DAX	26,323.88	+0.02%
CAC 40	8,726.03	+0.13% (fresh record high)
FTSE 100	10,862.50	-0.35% (-38.6 pts)

FTSE 100 the laggard, pulled down by miners retreating from recent record highs. Continental bourses extended their record run despite the overnight oil spike.

5. US MARKETS — YESTERDAY'S SESSION (MONDAY, 10 AUGUST 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE
S&P 500	7,753.11	-0.1%
Dow Jones	53,975.98	-0.1% (-60.95 pts)
Nasdaq Composite	26,605.36	-0.3%

Tone: a modest, oil-driven pause after last week's rally to record highs — not a broad reversal.

Lagging: tech/chips. Nvidia -2.9%, Apple -1.5%, on the FT report of Nvidia's talks with Apollo Global and Blackstone over a ~$500bn AI-infrastructure funding package, plus Intel's $15bn dilutive share sale.

Leading: energy-linked names, tracking Brent's ~4.7% jump to ~$87.4/bbl on Strait of Hormuz uncertainty (exact sector % move n/a).

Key takeaway: AI-capex financing questions and the Hormuz oil shock are the two swing factors into today's session, more than any broad growth or rate re-pricing.

6. ASIAN MARKETS — OVERNIGHT SESSION

INDEX	LEVEL	CHANGE
Nikkei 225	n/a	Conflicting figures found for the Aug 11 session; not independently verified
Hang Seng	n/a (Aug 11)	Last confirmed print: Mon 10 Aug, 25,937.49, +1.05% — one session stale
Shanghai Composite	n/a	Conflicting figures found; not independently verified
Kospi	n/a	Undated +0.65% figure found, not confirmed for Aug 11

Genuine Tuesday 11 Aug Asia-close data was not yet reliably indexed at collection time (05:15–07:45 UTC), consistent with Asian markets closing only shortly before this report was compiled. The most recently confirmed session (Monday 10 Aug) was broadly positive, led by AI/semiconductor names tracking Wall Street's prior rally — treat as directional context only, not as today's print. Confirm on a live terminal before publication.

7. COMMODITIES

COMMODITY	LEVEL	CHANGE
Brent crude	~$87.6-87.7/bbl	~+5%
WTI crude	~$80-82/bbl	~+3% to +5%
Gold	~$4,375-4,379/oz	~+0.8%
Natural gas (TTF, Europe)	~€58-60/MWh	~+3.4% to +5%
Copper (COMEX)	~$6.60/lb	~+0.6%, near record

Oil, gas and to a lesser extent gold are being driven by the Strait of Hormuz standoff: Iran says it will not reopen the strait while the US naval blockade continues, and Washington has described itself as only "semi-negotiating." The US Strategic Petroleum Reserve has fallen to its lowest level since January 1983, removing a buffer against further upside. Copper stays near record highs on tight global supply; gold's bid is also supported by softer US jobs data reinforcing near-term Fed rate-cut expectations.

8. RATES & FX

INSTRUMENT	LEVEL	CHANGE
US 10Y Treasury yield	4.72%	+7bp
German 10Y Bund yield	~3.16%	-0.22% over past week (intraday n/a)
EUR/USD	1.1561	~flat (prior 1.1558)
GBP/USD	1.3324	+0.08% (prior 1.3314)
DXY (US Dollar Index)	99.67	-0.36%

The dollar is soft and Treasury yields firmer as markets digest weaker-than-expected US employment data alongside the Hormuz-driven energy risk premium — an unusual combination pressuring DXY even as yields edge up. Bund yields have eased modestly over the past week.

9. DCM — PRIMARY BOND MARKET

YESTERDAY'S ISSUANCES (MONDAY, 10 AUGUST 2026)

No deal-level pricing (issuer/size/coupon/spread) could be confirmed for Monday's EUR IG, HY, SSA or FIG calendars via web search — primary-market terminals (IFR, GlobalCapital) were unreachable this morning. GlobalCapital's Primary Market Monitor referenced narrowing new-issue concessions for CEEMEA-adjacent issuers on 10 Aug, but full deal detail is paywalled. Marked n/a — confirm on IFR/GlobalCapital/Bloomberg terminal.

PIPELINE / EXPECTED TODAY & THIS WEEK

No specific mandates or issuer names could be confirmed. August is seasonally the slowest primary month; euro corporate supply fell to €17bn in July from €52bn in June, and Q3 gross euro supply is expected down roughly 20% q/q — consistent with a summer lull before a September reopening. Named deals: n/a.

KEY SPREADS

INDEX	LEVEL	DIRECTION
iTraxx Main (5Y)	n/a	No live quote retrievable — confirm on Markit/Bloomberg
iTraxx Crossover (5Y)	n/a	No live quote retrievable — confirm on Markit/Bloomberg
CDX.NA.IG	n/a	Proxy only: ICE BofA US Corp OAS 80bp (30 Jul)
ICE BofA US HY OAS	271bp (6 Aug)	—
iBoxx EUR Liquid HY OAS	~340bp	Exact date unconfirmed
Germany-Italy 10Y (BTP-Bund)	~72bp	TIGHTENING — FROM ~116BP START-2026

COMMENTARY

The August window is effectively closed for benchmark EUR IG/HY/SSA primary, consistent with typical seasonality, though YTD 2026 volumes (€308bn) remain 11% ahead of 2025 — second only to 2020. Utilities and TMT dominated July flow (~45% of YTD supply combined, up 45% and 31% y/y respectively), TMT demand clearly AI-infrastructure-capex driven. Covered bonds are bucking the slowdown: H1 EUR covered issuance €121.7bn, +21.2% y/y, FY forecast €180-190bn.

Asset managers (UBS AM, Guinness Global, Barings, Aviva Investors) report adding European government bond exposure as global risk becomes harder to price — a constructive demand backdrop for issuers once the window reopens post-summer. No industrials, transport, energy or financials primary activity confirmed for this specific week; recommend a terminal check before client-facing use.

10. ECONOMIC CALENDAR — TODAY (11 AUGUST 2026)

TIME (LONDON)	INDICATOR	CONSENSUS	IMPORTANCE
11:00	US NFIB Small Business Optimism (July)	n/a — prior 97.4	MEDIUM
—	Eurozone / Germany high-importance release	n/a — unconfirmed	n/a

Note: US CPI is Wednesday 12 Aug, PPI Thursday 13 Aug — not today. Full calendar could not be independently verified via search; check a live economic calendar (Investing.com/Reuters) directly before publication.
