2. IMPORTANT NEWS

US June CPI comes in much cooler than expected: 3.5% y/y vs 3.8% consensus

CNBC / Bloomberg • Tue 14 Jul, ~13:30 BST

Headline CPI fell 0.4% m/m, the biggest monthly drop since April 2020; core flat m/m at 2.6% y/y. July Fed hike odds collapsed to ~17-20% from ~42%. US 10Y yield fell toward 4.58% intraday before drifting back up overnight. Dollar sold off then partly recovered after new Fed Chair Kevin Warsh's testimony pushed back on a dovish read. Bullish for rates and risk assets into the open.

IBM crashes 25% — worst single-day loss in company history

CNBC / Yahoo Finance / SiliconANGLE • Tue 14 Jul close

Q2 pre-announced EPS $2.93 vs $3.01 est., revenue $17.2bn vs $17.86bn est. Management cited clients diverting capex from software/infrastructure toward hardware (memory, servers) ahead of expected price rises. Triggered a broader software-sector selloff (Microsoft, ServiceNow, Salesforce, Intuit -3% to -5%) — a read-through risk for European enterprise software (SAP, Dassault Systèmes) at the open.

Iran resumes attacks on shipping in the Strait of Hormuz; Trump drops transit-fee demand, oil extends rally

Reuters / Axios / CNN / Al Jazeera • through Tue 14 Jul

Missile/drone strikes hit a Qatari LNG carrier and a Saudi crude carrier; Washington reinstated a naval blockade on Iranian shipping. Trump replaced his proposed 20% transit fee with bilateral trade/investment asks of Gulf states. Brent has rallied over 10% in the past week to ~$86/bbl. Tailwind for Shell/BP and energy majors, headwind for airlines and shippers via fuel costs, and a fresh geopolitical risk premium for FX and rates.

Wall Street rallies on soft CPI; Asia follows through overnight, Kospi surges 7%+

CNBC • Tue 14 Jul close / Wed 15 Jul Asia session

S&P 500 +0.38% to 7,543.59, Nasdaq +0.9% to 26,107.01 (semis-led), Dow flat +0.02% (capped by IBM). Overnight: Kospi +7.1% on a semiconductor short-covering surge (SK Hynix +12%, Samsung +7.8%), Nikkei +0.9%, Hang Seng +0.8-1.6%. Sets a constructive tone into the European open, with chip-sector strength a likely tailwind for ASML/ASMI/BESI ahead of ASML's results this morning.

China Q2 GDP slows to 4.3% y/y, missing the 4.5% consensus — slowest pace since Q4 2022

FXStreet / CNN Business / Reuters • Wed 15 Jul, ~03:00 BST

Weak domestic demand and the Iran-driven oil shock cited as drags, even as June retail sales (+1.0% vs -0.1% exp) and industrial production (+5.3% vs +4.6% exp) beat forecasts. Produced a choppy, mixed reaction in mainland equities (Shanghai Composite -0.4%) even as the broader regional tape stayed risk-on. Relevant for European miners and luxury names exposed to Chinese demand.

3. EUROPEAN FUTURES (PRE-OPEN)

CONTRACT	LEVEL	INDICATIVE MOVE	COLLECTION TIME
Euro Stoxx 50 futures	~6,300-6,330	Flat to -0.5% (sources conflict)	07:00-08:00 BST
DAX futures	n/a	-0.10% to -0.15%	07:00 BST
CAC 40 futures	n/a	~flat (-0.01%)	07:00 BST
FTSE 100 futures	n/a	-0.32% to -0.63% (weakest of the four)	07:00 BST
US context — pre-market futures
S&P 500 e-mini	n/a	+0.2%	~07:00 BST
Nasdaq 100 e-mini	n/a	+0.7%	~07:00 BST
Dow e-mini	n/a	+0.1%	~07:00 BST

European futures point to a flat-to-slightly-lower open, with FTSE the laggard. Two forces are pulling in opposite directions: soft US CPI and a chip-led Asia rally (Kospi +7%) argue for a firm open, while renewed Strait of Hormuz tensions and the higher oil price are the cited drag, alongside lingering caution after IBM's historic crash. US futures are modestly positive, led by Nasdaq. Exact index-point levels for DAX/CAC/FTSE futures were not available from public sources this morning.

4. YESTERDAY'S CLOSES — EUROPEAN INDICES (TUESDAY 14 JULY 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE
Euro Stoxx 50	6,236	−0.56%
DAX 40	~25,147	+0.12%
CAC 40	8,366.85	+0.03%
FTSE 100	10,529.39	+0.30%

Mixed European session. FTSE 100 led the region (+0.30%) while Euro Stoxx 50 was the laggard (−0.56%). Pan-European STOXX 600 closed +0.2%, with basic resources (+2.4%) and oil & gas (+1.3%) the standout sectors — both tracking the Iran-driven commodity rally. DAX and CAC were essentially flat, consistent with a market digesting the oil spike rather than reacting decisively.

5. US MARKETS — YESTERDAY'S SESSION (TUESDAY 14 JULY 2026)

INDEX	CLOSE	CHANGE	NOTE
S&P 500	7,543.59	+0.38%	—
Dow Jones Industrial Average	52,508.27	+0.02%	Capped by IBM's −25% single-stock shock
Nasdaq Composite	26,107.01	+0.9%	Semis-led

Tone: Risk-on relief rally. Cooler June CPI (3.5% y/y) eased Fed hike fears and drove a chip-led advance; Q2 bank earnings opened strong (JPMorgan, Goldman Sachs, Citigroup, Bank of America, Wells Fargo all beat). The Dow's near-flat close reflects a major single-stock shock rather than a weak broad tape.

Leading: Semiconductors/hardware — Lam Research +4.25%, AMD +3.83%, Applied Materials +3.52%, Micron +3.49%, Analog Devices +2.69%. Financials — Goldman Sachs +7.37%, Morgan Stanley +4.56% on post-earnings beats.

Lagging: IBM −25% (worst single-day drop on record, surpassing 19 Oct 1987's −23.7%) on a Q2 guidance miss tied to a software-to-hardware capex rotation among clients. Adobe −4.00%, Stryker −5.6%, Intuitive Surgical −3.06%, Qualcomm −2.10%.

Key takeaway: Soft inflation plus strong bank earnings drove a broad chip/financials rally, but IBM's historic crash — and the software-spending-rotation narrative behind it — capped the Dow and is the dominant single-stock story heading into the European open.

6. ASIAN MARKETS — OVERNIGHT SESSION (WEDNESDAY 15 JULY 2026)

INDEX	LEVEL	CHANGE
Nikkei 225	~68,400	+0.9%
Hang Seng	~24,721	+0.8% to +1.6% (sources conflict)
Shanghai Composite	~3,952	−0.4%
Kospi (South Korea)	~7,300–7,343	+7.1%

Broad Asia-Pacific rally tracking Wall Street's soft-CPI-driven gains, with semiconductors leading sharply higher in Korea and Japan. Kospi surged 7.1% — a semiconductor short-covering squeeze (SK Hynix +12% locally, its US ADR +27% overnight; Samsung Electronics +7.8%) — triggering a buy-side circuit breaker. The overshadowing macro event was China's Q2 GDP miss (4.3% vs 4.5% expected, slowest since Q4 2022), which produced a choppy, mixed mainland session (Shanghai −0.4%) even as June retail sales and industrial production both beat forecasts. Overall regional tone: risk-on with a China-growth caveat.

7. COMMODITIES

COMMODITY	LEVEL	CHANGE	TIME
Brent (ICE, USD/bbl)	85.84	+0.59% (up ~11% over prior 2 sessions)	~07:00 BST
WTI (NYMEX, USD/bbl)	79.57-80.01	+2.9% intraday (prior close 78.14)	~07:00 BST
Gold (XAU/USD, USD/oz)	~4,050-4,080	+1% to +2% (sources range $4,037-4,089)	~07:00 BST
Natural gas — Henry Hub (USD/MMBtu)	n/a (last confirmed 3.29, 6 Jul)	—	—
Natural gas — European TTF (EUR/MWh)	52.96-53.99	+4.95% (3-month high)	14 Jul close
Copper (COMEX, USD/lb)	6.17-6.26	+1.13%	~07:00 BST

Oil is the dominant commodity story: Brent and WTI have extended their surge as Iran resumed attacks on Gulf shipping and Washington reimposed a naval blockade on Iranian tankers — Brent is up roughly 11% over the past two sessions. European gas (TTF) has followed suit, up nearly 5% to a three-month high on the same Hormuz-security-risk headlines, a direct euro-area inflation concern. Gold is bid on safe-haven flows and the softer US CPI print, though exact levels vary meaningfully across sources this morning ($4,037-$4,089) — treat as a range. Copper is firmer on Chilean supply tightness (water shortages, lower ore grades, labour disputes). Henry Hub has no confirmed same-day print.

8. RATES & FX

INSTRUMENT	LEVEL	CHANGE	TIME
US Treasury 10-year	4.58-4.63%	Near 2-month highs, eased post-CPI (fell to 4.58% intraday Tue)	~07:00 BST
German Bund 10-year	3.03-3.10%	Near highest since 21 May, on rising ECB hike bets	~07:00 BST
EUR/USD	1.1427	Near one-year low	14 Jul close
GBP/USD	1.3388-1.3407	Broadly flat	~07:00 BST
DXY (Dollar Index)	100.91-100.93	-0.35%, off early-July high near 101.39	~07:00 BST

US Treasuries rallied on the soft CPI print before giving back some of the move overnight, leaving the 10Y in a 4.58-4.63% band. The Bund is trading near multi-month highs as markets price a growing chance of a further ECB hike (next expected ~September) given Iran-driven energy costs feeding into euro-area inflation — a genuine policy complication for the ECB. EUR/USD remains pinned near one-year lows on the same dynamic. The dollar index has eased off its early-July peak post-CPI but stays elevated on safe-haven demand tied to the Hormuz escalation.

9. DCM — PRIMARY BOND MARKET

YESTERDAY'S ISSUANCES / MOST RECENT CONFIRMED PRICINGS

GlobalCapital and IFR (primary DCM trade sources) blocked automated access this morning; a clean, dated list of deals pricing specifically on 14 July could not be confirmed. Figures below are the most recent verifiable pricings (dated), skewing toward the 1–9 July window — treat as "recent primary market context" rather than strictly "yesterday."

ISSUER	CCY / SIZE	MATURITY	COUPON / SPREAD	NOTES
European Union (SSA)	EUR €11bn dual-tranche	5y (Oct 2031) + 20y tap (Oct 2046)	5y: 2.875% cpn, ms+11.9bp • 20y: 4.000% cpn, ms+76.7bp	5y book >€83bn (13.8x); combined book >€177bn. Priced ~8 Jul, part of €80bn H2 funding target.
TenneT Germany (Utility, Green)	EUR €3.5bn, 4 tranches	n/a (tranche detail)	n/a	DCM debut, largest-ever corporate EU Green Bond-aligned deal. Orders >€21bn (~6x). Priced ~7-8 Jul.
CaixaBank (Financials, SNP)	EUR €1.25bn	11NC10	3.875% cpn, ms+108bp (tightened 32bp from IPT ms+140bp)	Largest-ever CaixaBank euro SNP book, peaked >€6.5bn (5.2x). Paired with a tender on 2026 SNP paper.
Athens International Airport (Transport)	EUR €500m	7y (2033)	3.75% cpn	Debut deal, rated BBB/Baa2. Book >€2.6bn final, 5.2x covered. Leads: Goldman Sachs, Morgan Stanley.
Jefferies Financial Group	EUR €850m	due 15 Jul 2033	4.500% cpn, priced 99.741 (yield 4.544%)	Priced ~8 Jul; IPT tightening not confirmed.

PIPELINE / EXPECTED THIS WEEK

No specific mandated or rumoured euro deal was confirmed for 15 July itself. On the sovereign side, the French Agence France Trésor has a mid-month auction on 16 July (taps of 3y/5y OAT plus linkers, ~€9bn), and the EU flagged its next EU-Bond auction/announcement around 13 July, consistent with continued H2 supply toward its €80bn target. TenneT signalled its green debut is "the first of many" from the name, and a GlobalCapital headline (13 Jul, paywalled) referenced "rare corporate bond issuers" lining up euro market returns — consistent with a still-open window ahead of the seasonal August lull. Utility/green and financial SNP supply both look likely to continue near-term.

KEY CREDIT SPREADS

INDEX	LEVEL (BP)	MOVE / DIRECTION
iTraxx Europe Main 5y	n/a (last confirmed 52bp, 22 May)	Likely modest widening into 13-14 Jul on Iran risk-off
iTraxx Europe Crossover 5y	246bp (9 Jul)	Was –5bp into 9 Jul; likely ticked back up with the 13-14 Jul Iran escalation
CDX IG 5y (USD)	n/a	Described as "widened modestly" amid the Iran conflict (Investing.com commentary)
Euro corporate IG spread (iBoxx OAS)	n/a (last confirmed 82.6bp, 30 Apr)	New-issue premiums reported climbing as books thin (GlobalCapital, 13 Jul)

COMMENTARY

The new-issue window remains functionally open despite a geopolitically-driven risk-off backdrop: the EU's €11bn dual-tranche syndication and TenneT's €3.5bn green debut both drew outsized demand (13.8x and ~6x respectively), showing real-money accounts are still deploying into large, well-flagged trades. Industrials/utilities and transport supplied the standout prints, while financials continue to compress aggressively — CaixaBank's 32bp IPT-to-pricing tightening on its largest-ever SNP book is the clearest signal of investor appetite. That said, GlobalCapital's note that euro IG new-issue premiums are climbing as books thin, combined with a likely widening in Crossover and Main on the Iran escalation, suggests funding conditions into today are a touch less permissive than a week ago, even as the primary window itself stays open ahead of the August lull.

10. ECONOMIC CALENDAR — TODAY (15 JULY 2026)

TIME (BST)	ZONE	INDICATOR	CONSENSUS / ACTUAL	IMPORTANCE
03:00	China	Q2 GDP (y/y)	Actual 4.3% vs 4.5% cons. (prior 5.0%)	HIGH
03:00	China	June retail sales / industrial production	Retail +1.0% (vs −0.1% exp) • IP +5.3% (vs +4.6% exp), both beat	MEDIUM
12:00	US	MBA Mortgage Applications (weekly)	Consensus n/a	LOW
13:30	US	PPI — June	Cons. ~0.0% m/m (prior +1.1% m/m)	HIGH
13:30	US	Empire State Manufacturing Index — July	Consensus n/a	MEDIUM
13:30	UK	BoE's Sarah Breeden, speech (financial stability conference)	—	LOW
17:00	Eurozone	ECB's Christine Lagarde, on-stage remarks (Paris)	—	LOW
18:00	US	Federal Reserve Beige Book	Qualitative	MEDIUM/ HIGH

No first-tier UK or Eurozone data release is scheduled today; the calendar is UK/EU-light and dominated instead by China's overnight GDP miss and the US afternoon slate (PPI, Beige Book). PPI is the key US print — a hot number would reinforce the inflation-risk narrative building from the oil spike and complicate the soft-CPI relief rally. The Fed enters its blackout period on 18 July ahead of the 28–29 July FOMC meeting, making the Beige Book the last qualitative read before that decision.

11. CORPORATE EVENTS & EARNINGS

COMPANY	EXCHANGE	EVENT	TIME
ASML Holding	Euronext Amsterdam / Nasdaq ADR	Q2 2026 results, pre-European-open. Consensus ~$7.94 EPS, ~$10.27bn revenue (+17.8% y/y); options pricing an ~8% share move	~05:00–06:00 BST
Morgan Stanley	NYSE	Q2 2026 earnings; consensus EPS ~$2.73 (+28.2% y/y)	~12:30 BST (call ~13:30 BST)
Johnson & Johnson	NYSE	Q2 2026 earnings, before US open; consensus EPS ~$2.85, revenue ~$25.05bn	Pre-market US
PNC Financial Services	NYSE	Q2 2026 earnings, before market open; options pricing ~3.3% move	Pre-market US
Kinder Morgan	NYSE	Q2 2026 earnings, after US close; call ~21:30 BST	After US close

Note on bank earnings sequencing: sources show some overlap — Tuesday's US session move data attributes gains in Goldman Sachs (+7.37%) and Morgan Stanley (+4.56%) to "post-earnings beats," while the corporate calendar separately lists Morgan Stanley reporting today with a specific 12:30 BST slot. Treat the Tuesday moves as confirmed (JPMorgan, Goldman Sachs, Citigroup, Bank of America, Wells Fargo all beat and reported Tuesday per CNBC's earnings coverage); Morgan Stanley, PNC, JNJ and Kinder Morgan are the next confirmed reporters, today. No major FTSE-350 or STOXX 600 earnings/AGM could be confirmed as scheduled specifically for today beyond the ASML read-through — UK/European corporate diary otherwise n/a for today.

12. STOCKS TO WATCH

ASML (ASML.AS)	Q2 results pre-open; consensus $7.94 EPS / ~$10.27bn revenue (+15-18% y/y). Options pricing an ~8% move. Kospi's +7% overnight semis surge is a bullish read-through; focus on H2 guidance and AI-capex order backlog.	Binary / high volatility
IBM (IBM)	–25% Tuesday, worst day on record, on a Q2 profit warning tied to clients shifting capex from software to hardware. Dragging global software peers; watch for European enterprise-software read-through (SAP, Dassault Systèmes).	Bearish
Shell / BP	Brent +10% over the past week to ~$86/bbl on Strait of Hormuz tensions. BP near 12-month highs, Shell near best levels of the month.	Bullish easyJet	Apollo's £5.7bn ($7.7bn) takeover approach (£7.15/share) now leads Castllake's £6.90 bid; shares at highest since Feb 2022. Deadlines: Castllake 3 Aug, Apollo 7 Aug.	Bullish / deal-driven
Lufthansa	Downgraded to Sell from Neutral by Citigroup on weak demand/capacity outlook; also exposed to rising jet-fuel costs from the Hormuz-driven oil spike.	Bearish
BHP Group	+4% in Australia after the NSW government moved to rezone land at the Mt Arthur coal mine.	Bullish
Rio Tinto	Q2 iron ore shipments (85.3mt) beat forecasts, but management flagged rising fuel costs tied to the Iran conflict as a risk to full-year earnings.	Neutral / watch
Rheinmetall	Remains under pressure after Germany's reported scrapping of the F126 frigate deal, where Rheinmetall was to be lead contractor; down ~4% since the NATO summit.	Bearish / volatile
Goldman Sachs / Bank of America / Citigroup	Q2 beats confirmed Tuesday (GS record EPS $20.98, revenue +39% y/y); sets a strong tone for Morgan Stanley and PNC reporting today, and a read-through for HSBC, BNP Paribas, Barclays, Deutsche Bank at the open.	Bullish sector tone
United Airlines	Reports Q2 earnings today; sector under scrutiny given the Hormuz-driven jet-fuel cost spike hitting airlines broadly.	Watch

13. MACRO / CORPORATE / POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

MACRO

US inflation cools sharply: June CPI 3.5% y/y (vs 3.8% exp, down from 4.2%), core 2.6% y/y flat m/m — the softest headline print since 2020, sharply repricing hike odds lower for July (~17-20%) and September (~63%).

Yields and dollar whipsaw: 10Y fell to 4.58% intraday Tuesday before drifting back up; dollar sold off then partially recovered after new Fed Chair Kevin Warsh's testimony pushed back on a dovish read. Fed funds steady at 3.50–3.75%; next FOMC 28–29 July, blackout starts 18 July.

China growth disappoints: Q2 GDP 4.3% y/y vs 4.5% expected, slowest since Q4 2022, even as June retail sales and industrial production both beat — a mixed underlying picture, with the Iran-driven oil shock cited as a growth drag.

Gold and Bund near multi-month highs: Gold holding above $4,000/oz on safe-haven demand; German 10Y Bund near its highest since 21 May on rising bets for a further ECB hike as Iran-driven energy costs feed euro-area inflation.

CORPORATE

IBM's historic crash: –25% on a Q2 guidance miss tied to clients rotating capex from software/infrastructure to hardware ahead of expected price rises — triggered a broad software-sector selloff (Microsoft, ServiceNow, Salesforce, Intuit down 3-5%).

Bank earnings season in full swing: JPMorgan, Goldman Sachs, Citigroup, Bank of America and Wells Fargo all beat Tuesday (Goldman posted a record EPS of $20.98, revenue +39% y/y, aided by SpaceX IPO-related fee income); Morgan Stanley, PNC, Johnson & Johnson and Kinder Morgan report today.

easyJet takeover battle: Apollo's £5.7bn proposal now leads Castlake's £6.90/share bid, with decisions due in early August — an active European aviation consolidation story.

ASML's results this morning are the key European corporate event of the day — a bellwether for the semiconductor-equipment cycle and AI-capex sentiment, with implications for ASM International, BEI and the broader European tech tape.

POLITICAL / GEOPOLITICAL

Strait of Hormuz escalation: Iran resumed missile/drone attacks on commercial shipping (a Qatari LNG carrier and a Saudi crude carrier), unravelling a recent ceasefire-style arrangement; Washington reinstated a blockade on Iranian shipping, then replaced a proposed 20% transit fee with bilateral trade/investment asks of Gulf states.

Oil-price spike is the dominant cross-asset driver: Brent +10% on the week to ~$86/bbl — bullish energy names, bearish airlines/shippers/consumer discretionary via fuel-cost pass-through, and a fresh inflation and rates complication for the ECB and BoE.

US tariff policy in flux: Section 122 "reciprocal tariff" authority is set to expire 24 July 2026 unless extended by Congress; the administration is pivoting toward expanded Section 301/232 investigations (manufacturing overcapacity, forced-labour enforcement across dozens of economies), with a USTR public hearing scheduled for 22 September — an ongoing source of trade-policy uncertainty for European exporters.

14. KEY THEMES — TOP 5 BY HORIZON

TODAY'S TOP 5

1. ASML Q2 results

Pre-open bellwether for the AI-capex/semiconductor cycle; options pricing an ~8% move. Sets the tone for European tech at the open.

2. US bank earnings continue

Morgan Stanley and PNC report today after Tuesday's strong JPMorgan/Goldman/Citi/BofA/Wells Fargo beats — a direct read-through for European banks.

3. Strait of Hormuz escalation

Renewed Iranian attacks on shipping and a US naval blockade are keeping oil bid and pressuring European futures at the open.

4. China Q2 GDP miss

Growth slowed to 4.3% vs 4.5% expected, the weakest since Q4 2022 — a read on Chinese demand relevant for European miners and luxury names.

5. US PPI + Fed Beige Book

Afternoon inflation-pipeline data and the last qualitative Fed read before the 18 July blackout ahead of the 28-29 July FOMC.

THIS WEEK'S TOP 5

1. Q2 earnings season peak

Banks, ASML and JNJ this week, followed by Netflix, TSMC, UnitedHealth and GE Aerospace on 16 July — a heavy data flow for sector positioning.

2. Strait of Hormuz trajectory

Further escalation or de-escalation on Iranian shipping attacks will set the near-term path for oil, gas and the geopolitical risk premium.

3. Fed Beige Book into FOMC blackout

Blackout begins 18 July ahead of the 28-29 July meeting — today's Beige Book is the last qualitative signal before then.

4. easyJet takeover battle

Apollo vs Castlake bids, with decision deadlines 3-7 August — an active European aviation M&A/consolidation watch.

5. EU/French sovereign supply

French OAT auction 16 July and continued EU-Bond issuance test the primary market's appetite after a strong run of oversubscribed deals.

THIS MONTH'S TOP 5

1. FOMC 28-29 July

First fully-prepared meeting under Fed Chair Kevin Warsh amid still-elevated inflation and a rebuilding oil-price risk premium.

2. Section 122 tariff authority expiry (24 July)

US trade policy pivoting toward expanded Section 301/232 investigations — an ongoing uncertainty for European exporters.

3. Iran conflict resolution or escalation

Sets the oil-price regime for H2 2026 and the scale of inflation pass-through risk to the ECB and BoE.

4. AI capex/semiconductor cycle confirmation

ASML today, TSMC on 16 July, and the broader chip supply chain will confirm whether the AI-capex trajectory remains intact after IBM's software-spending-rotation warning.

5. ECB policy path

A hawkish bias is building as Bund yields sit near multi-month highs on energy-driven inflation risk — watch for confirmation at the next ECB meeting.

15. KEY TRENDS TO WATCH

1 DAY

ASML reaction: An ~8% priced move either way will set the tone for European tech and the wider AI-capex trade at the open.

Hormuz headlines: Any fresh attack or de-escalation signal is the single biggest swing factor for oil, gas and risk sentiment intraday.

China GDP digestion: Watch miners and luxury names for a delayed reaction to the growth miss.

US PPI / Beige Book: A hot PPI print would reinforce the inflation-risk narrative building from the oil spike.

1 WEEK

Earnings wave: Banks, ASML, JNJ this week; Netflix, TSMC, UnitedHealth, GE Aerospace on 16 July — a dense data flow for sector rotation.

Iran trajectory: Further Hormuz escalation would push Brent decisively above $90; de-escalation could unwind much of the past week's move.

FOMC blackout begins 18 July: Fed communication goes quiet into the 28–29 July decision after today's Beige Book.

Sovereign supply: French OAT auction 16 July tests appetite after a run of well-oversubscribed EU and corporate deals.

1 MONTH

FOMC 28–29 July: First meeting fully under Chair Warsh with inflation risk rebuilding from the oil shock — a key test of the new Fed's reaction function.

Section 122 tariff authority expiry, 24 July: Watch for Congressional action or a pivot to Section 301/232 tools, with direct implications for European exporters.

Iran conflict resolution/escalation: The dominant swing factor for H2 2026 oil prices and euro-area/UK inflation and rate paths.

ECB policy path: Bund yields near multi-month highs signal a market pricing in a real chance of a further hike — confirmation or pushback at the next meeting will be a major rates driver.
