

MORNING BRIEFING

Tuesday, 8 September 2026 | Generated 06:20 BST (London) | Pre-European-open

2. IMPORTANT NEWS

US and Iran exchange further tanker strikes in the Strait of Hormuz

Bloomberg, Al Jazeera

The six-month war escalated over the weekend with the largest tit-for-tat tanker strikes yet; Iran says it hit three US-linked vessels, the US says it struck three Iranian crude tankers. Brent near a six-week high. This is the dominant macro driver for risk and commodities this morning.

Canada's retaliatory tariffs on ~$20bn of US goods take effect today

Al Jazeera, CNBC

Tariffs of 15-50% on steel, appliances, agricultural equipment and dairy match Washington's levies on Canadian goods dollar-for-dollar. Adds to trade-war overhang on North American growth and inflation expectations.

Fed seen ~58-60% likely to hike 25bp at the 15-16 September FOMC

Reuters, Bloomberg, CNBC

Friday's US payrolls (+162k vs +55k consensus, unemployment steady at 4.1%) reset hike odds higher and pushed Treasury yields up. Rate path now the second key swing factor for equities and DXY into next week.

Uber mandates banks for debut euro bond, investor calls run 7-8 September

Bloomberg

Goldman Sachs, BNP Paribas, BofA, Deutsche Bank and Morgan Stanley arranging a multi-tranche IG deal to refinance the €14.2bn bridge backing the Delivery Hero takeover offer. First IG euro issuance for Uber — a DCM signpost for today/tomorrow's window.

Shipping and tanker stocks extend historic 2026 rally

CNBC

A 35-name shipping basket is up ~68% YTD (82% over 12 months) as Hormuz disruption lengthens voyage times; crude-tanker names lead, up ~120% YTD. Sector remains a key read-through for today's stocks-to-watch list.

News scan collected ~05:30-06:15 UTC, 8 September 2026.

3. EUROPEAN FUTURES (PRE-OPEN)

Collected ~06:00 UTC. Levels are indicative pre-open expected moves, not tradable print prices; confirm on exchange terminals before the cash open.

INDEX	FUTURES LEVEL	EXPECTED MOVE
Euro Stoxx 50	n/a	~ -0.2%
DAX	n/a	~ -0.2%
CAC 40	n/a	< -0.1%
FTSE 100	n/a	n/a

US FUTURES (CONTEXT)

INDEX	FUTURES LEVEL	DIRECTION
S&P 500 futures	n/a	Lower — retreating after Labor Day close
Nasdaq futures	n/a	Lower, tracking S&P

European futures point to a modest lower open, in narrow ranges, tracking a soft Asian session and elevated oil prices. US futures are also softer as Wall Street returns from the Labor Day holiday with the Hormuz conflict and rate-hike odds both in focus.

4. YESTERDAY'S CLOSES — EUROPE (MONDAY 7 SEPTEMBER)

INDEX	CLOSE	% CHANGE
Euro Stoxx 50	n/a	~flat (Stoxx 600 ended just below flatline)
DAX	n/a	-0.25%
CAC 40	n/a	+0.33%
FTSE 100	n/a	-0.10%

Mixed session. Paris led on strength in oil & gas (+1.29%) and tech (+1.1%); London and Frankfurt lagged as healthcare (-0.94%) and financials (-0.91%) dragged. Investors were focused on renewed Middle East hostilities rather than domestic catalysts.

5. US MARKETS — LAST SESSION (FRIDAY 4 SEPTEMBER; US CLOSED MONDAY 7 SEPT FOR LABOR DAY)

INDEX	CLOSE	% CHANGE
S&P 500	7,718.60	-0.38%
Dow Jones	53,414.25	-0.51%
Nasdaq Composite	26,506.99	-0.29%

Tone: Risk-off into the long weekend. August payrolls printed +162k versus +55k consensus, with unemployment steady at 4.1% — a blowout beat that lifted Fed hike odds for 16 September to ~58-60% and sent Treasury yields higher, pressuring equities into the close.

Key takeaway: Good news on jobs was bad news for risk assets via the rates channel. Markets return today (Tuesday) to a higher starting point for yields, elevated oil, and an escalated Hormuz conflict — a heavier tape than Friday's setup.

Sectors: leading/lagging sector breakdown for the Friday session — n/a (not reliably sourced this morning; energy likely supported by the oil move, rate-sensitive growth names likely lagged on the yield jump).

6. ASIAN MARKETS — OVERNIGHT SESSION

INDEX	LEVEL	% CHANGE
Nikkei 225	66,399.84	+2.12%
Kospi	6,995.39	+4.61%
Hang Seng	n/a	-0.85% (intraday, last hour of trade)
Shanghai Composite	n/a (CSI 300 quoted: 4,575.02)	+0.59% (CSI 300)

Tech-led strength dominated: Samsung Electronics +5.68%, SK Hynix +8.26%, SoftBank +11.22%, Advantest +4.20% drove Kospi and Nikkei sharply higher on AI/semiconductor optimism. Hong Kong was the regional laggard, softer into the close. Overall tone: risk-on in North Asia, contrasting with the more cautious European and US futures picture — a divergence driven by stock-specific tech news rather than a shared macro signal.

7. COMMODITIES

COMMODITY	LEVEL	CHANGE
Brent crude	~$97/bbl	+9% over 5 days, +19% over 1 month
WTI crude	~$92.27/bbl	+$0.79, near 6-week high
Gold	~$4,405/oz (7 Sept level)	-0.62%
Natural gas	n/a	n/a
Copper	~$6.55/lb (7 Sept level)	-0.70%

Oil is the standout move: Brent near a six-week high on escalating US-Iran tanker strikes in the Strait of Hormuz, a chokepoint for roughly a fifth of world oil supply in peacetime. Gold eased despite the geopolitical backdrop, pressured by rising rate-hike odds ahead of the 16 September FOMC — a reminder that the rates channel is currently outweighing the safe-haven bid.

8. RATES & FX

INSTRUMENT	LEVEL	CHANGE
US 10Y Treasury yield	n/a	Higher post-payrolls (exact level unconfirmed this morning)
German 10Y Bund yield	n/a	n/a
EUR/USD	n/a	n/a
GBP/USD	n/a	n/a (6-month forecast range 1.32-1.40)
DXY (Dollar Index)	98.97 (7 Sept)	-0.21%

DXY holding just above 99 after Friday's payrolls beat, with markets pricing roughly 58% odds of a 25bp Fed hike on 16 September. Precise current 10Y Treasury and Bund yield prints, plus live EUR/USD and GBP/USD, could not be reliably sourced this morning — verify on a terminal before trading off these levels.

9. DCM — PRIMARY BOND MARKET

YESTERDAY'S ISSUANCES

n/a — no specific EUR corporate IG/HY, SSA or financials print terms (issuer, size, maturity, coupon/spread, IPT tightening) could be reliably sourced for Monday 7 September this morning.

PIPELINE / EXPECTED TODAY

Uber Technologies — debut multi-tranche EUR IG bond

Investor calls run 7-8 September via Goldman Sachs, BNP Paribas, BofA Securities, Deutsche Bank and Morgan Stanley. Proceeds to refinance the €14.2bn bridge backing the Delivery Hero takeover offer. Pricing likely this week, first-ever euro issuance for Uber at IG status.

Broader mandated pipeline for today (other IG/HY/SSA/financials names) — n/a, not reliably sourced this morning.

KEY SPREADS

INDEX	LEVEL	MOVE	DIRECTION
iTraxx Main	n/a	n/a	n/a
iTraxx Crossover	n/a	n/a	n/a
CDX IG	n/a	n/a	n/a
Avg euro corporate IG spread	n/a	n/a	n/a

COMMENTARY

Primary window still functionally open: Uber's debut euro mandate is a clear signal issuers are willing to print despite the Hormuz/oil backdrop. Broader research notes euro IG spreads sitting near 20-year-lookback tights (1st percentile), implying full valuations and a market that rewards selective, well-flagged deals over opportunistic ones. No hard CDS index levels could be sourced this morning — treat primary tone as constructive-but-cautious pending confirmed spread data. Skew toward financials and industrials names continuing to use windows around US data and Fed-meeting-week volatility (FOMC 15-16 September) to get deals done early.

10. ECONOMIC CALENDAR — TODAY

LONDON TIME	INDICATOR	CONSENSUS	IMPORTANCE
n/a	Eurozone / UK / US data releases for 8 September	n/a	MEDIUM

A detailed, timed calendar (specific indicator, consensus, London time) could not be reliably sourced this morning beyond a generic count of scheduled releases. Known fixed point this week: the FOMC meets 15-16 September (decision Wednesday 16th, 2pm ET / 7pm BST), and the ECB is separately reported to have a near-certain quarter-point hike under consideration at its next meeting — confirm exact ECB date on the official calendar before citing.

11. CORPORATE EVENTS & EARNINGS — TODAY

IonQ — Investor Day

Held today; stock already trading higher into the event on reports of institutional buying (UBS, Man Group) and strong Q2 revenue growth following the SkyWater Technologies integration.

US earnings slate includes Casey's General Stores (CASY), GameStop (GME) and ~15 others

Broader breakdown of names and European corporate earnings/AGMs for 8 September — n/a, not reliably itemized this morning.

12. STOCKS TO WATCH

Frontline / Nordic American Tankers / DHT Holdings	Crude-tanker basket up ~120% YTD as Hormuz disruption lengthens voyage times, lifting day-rates; Iran-US tanker strikes over the weekend keep the trade live.	Higher
Rheinmetall / Leonardo / BAE Systems / Thales	European defense complex remains in focus on record order backlogs (Rheinmetall guiding +40-45% sales growth in 2026) and RBC's recent Buy initiations; Hormuz escalation reinforces the rearmament narrative.	Higher / in focus
Uber Technologies	Debut euro bond investor calls conclude today; pricing decision expected this week. DCM signpost name, not a typical equity catalyst but relevant for credit desks.	Watch (credit)
Moderna	Phase 3 melanoma vaccine trial with Keytruda delivered strong results, but Rothschild & Co. Redburn downgraded to Sell on valuation and limited-use-case concerns.	Mixed / pressure from downgrade
IonQ	Investor Day today; reported institutional accumulation (UBS, Man Group) and strong Q2 print ahead of the event.	Higher
Argan Inc (AGX)	Freedom Broker upgraded to Buy from Hold, PT $700.	Higher
Amgen	Wells Fargo maintains Equal-Weight, raises PT to $435 from $400.	Modest positive
Teva Pharmaceutical Industries	UBS maintains Buy, raises PT to $48 from $42.	Higher
Energy majors (Shell, BP, TotalEnergies) — Europe	Oil & gas was Monday's standout European sector (+1.29%); Brent near six-week highs on Hormuz strikes should keep the sector supported at the open.	Higher
Canadian steel / consumer goods exporters to the US	Newly effective Canadian retaliatory tariffs (15-50% on ~$20bn of US goods) create two-way pressure; affected US importers/exporters into Canada worth monitoring into the open.	Pressure

13. MACRO / CORPORATE / POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

MACRO

August US payrolls +162k vs +55k consensus; unemployment steady at 4.1% — reset Fed hike odds to ~58-60% for 16 September.

FOMC meets 15-16 September, decision Wednesday 2pm ET (7pm BST), with updated dot plot.

DXY holding just above 99, softer on the day but still elevated on hike expectations; 10Y Treasury yields reported higher post-payrolls (exact level n/a).

CORPORATE

Uber mandates banks for debut euro IG bond to refinance the €14.2bn Delivery Hero acquisition bridge.

European defense names (Rheinmetall, Leonardo, BAE, Thales) continue to re-rate on record backlogs and analyst upgrades.

Shipping/tanker sector's 2026 rally (basket +68% YTD) extends further on Hormuz-driven freight tailwinds.

POLITICAL / GEOPOLITICAL

US-Iran conflict escalates with the largest tit-for-tat tanker strikes yet in the Strait of Hormuz over the weekend.

Canada's retaliatory tariffs on ~$20bn of US goods take effect today (15-50% on steel, appliances, agri equipment, dairy), matching US levies dollar-for-dollar.

Canadian government has announced a C$5.4bn support package for businesses and workers affected by the trade dispute.

14. KEY THEMES — TOP 5 BY HORIZON

TODAY'S TOP 5

Hormuz escalation

Fresh tanker strikes keep oil bid and risk sentiment cautious into the European open.

Canada tariffs take effect

$20bn of retaliatory duties live from today; watch North American-exposed exporters.

Uber euro bond calls conclude

Pricing decision likely follows; a live test of IG primary appetite.

IonQ Investor Day

Guidance/strategy update could move the stock and read across to AI/quantum names.

Asia tech strength vs Europe/US caution

Kospi/Nikkei up sharply on chip names; divergence with softer European/US futures worth watching at the open.

THIS WEEK'S TOP 5

FOMC meeting, 15-16 September

~58-60% priced odds of a 25bp hike; dot plot will reset the 2026-27 rate path.

ECB meeting

Reports flag a quarter-point hike as near-certain; confirm exact date on the official calendar.

US-Iran conflict trajectory

Further strikes or a de-escalation signal would be the single biggest swing factor for oil and risk this week.

US earnings continue

Names including Oracle and Adobe report later this week per the calendar.

DCM primary window

Uber pricing plus any broader IG/SSA supply as issuers look to get ahead of FOMC-week volatility.

THIS MONTH'S TOP 5

Fed and ECB rate paths for the rest of 2026

September decisions set the tone for Q4 positioning across rates, FX and credit.

US-Iran war and Hormuz shipping risk

Six months in, with no resolution signalled; a structural driver of the 2026 tanker/shipping rally and oil volatility.

US-Canada trade war

Tariff escalation on both sides now live; watch for further retaliation or a negotiated rollback.

European defense re-rating

Continued NATO spending commitments and order backlogs (Rheinmetall, Leonardo, BAE) into year-end.

IG credit valuations

Spreads reported near 20-year-lookback tights; a repricing risk if the Hormuz or rates story deteriorates.

15. KEY TRENDS TO WATCH

1 DAY

Any further Hormuz strikes or de-escalation headlines — the single largest intraday risk factor.

Follow-through (or fade) of the Kospi/Nikkei tech rally into the European and US open.

Uber euro bond pricing terms, if announced today, as an early read on IG primary appetite this week.

1 MONTH

Trajectory of the US-Iran conflict and its persistent effect on oil prices and shipping/tanker valuations.

US-Canada tariff dispute — scope for further escalation or a negotiated de-escalation before month-end.

Post-FOMC/ECB rate path clarity feeding into Q4 positioning across rates, credit and FX; IG spread valuations (near multi-year tights) a watch point for a re-widening risk.

1 WEEK

FOMC decision Wednesday 16 September — hike probability currently ~58-60%, dot-plot revisions key.

ECB meeting (date to be confirmed) — a quarter-point hike reported as near-certain by market commentary.

US earnings from Oracle, Adobe and others later in the week.
